

CHRISTOPHE POLY

Christophe Poly, an artist of Greek and French descent, has always been captivated by the arts. His creative journey began with formal training at a jewelry school, where he quickly discovered his passion for crafting unique and expressive designs. Over the years, Poly has honed his skills and developed an original style and technique that have become the hallmarks of his jewelry and are distinctly recognized as 'Christophe Poly'.

Poly draws inspiration from his diverse interests, including travel, fashion, design, and architecture. His fascination with the beauty of everyday objects and their volume, structure, and shape inform his creations.

He is renowned for his innovative method of combining industrial materials with organic forms, creating jewelry that is both modern and expressive. His designs are rooted in an architectural concept. Poly's process begins with high-quality materials, including brass, aluminum, stainless steel, acrylic, rubber, leather, and glass.

Each piece is meticulously handmade in his Montreal studio. With a focus on continual evolution, Poly perfects his collections each season, introducing new designs and categories to surprise and delight his clientele.

A long-time member of the Québec Craft Council (CMAQ), Christophe Poly is recognized for his ability to blend artistic innovation with wearable, comfortable designs. His work embodies a harmonious fusion of creativity and technical mastery, making him a distinctive figure in the world of contemporary jewelry.
